Sightings of Blue Groper have been made in the Bass Strait and off the east coast of Tasmania. These are the state fish of New South Wales. One male groper heads a larger school and if he is removed the dominant female changes gender and colour and becomes the new replacement male. MALE: Males have fleshy lips and are a blue or blue-green colour. FEMALE: Brown with random light spotting/blotches. JUVENILE: are grey with similar blotches. Length: Up to 1 m Habitat Eastern blue groper are generally found on or near exposed reef, 0-40 m depth Log it Log this species wherever it is spotted in Tasmania or Victoria Related links/info Species names on the Redmap site are based on the Codes for Australian Aquatic Biota or CAAB (. The colour is very variable with adults: males a vivid blue, females reddish brown and the juveniles a greyish brown, brownish orange or green. Diet consists of crabs, prawns, shellfish and sea urchins. Size Maximum of close to 50 kg and a length of over 1 m. Distribution Blue Groper are found in rocky reef areas along the east coast, between Hervey Bay and Wilson's Promontory. Confusing species The Blue Groper is a member of the wrasse family and should not be confused with the Queensland gropers (Epinephelus). There is also a similar Blue Groper (Achoerodus gouldii) found in the waters of South Australia and Western Australia. Posted Tue 27 Jan 2015 at 7:00pm Tuesday 27 Jan 2015 at 7:00pm Tue 27 Jan 2015 at 7:00pm Fisheries officers seized a 9.1 kilogram blue groper with a spear wound. (NSW Department of Primary Industries) Share this article abc.net.au/news/groper-speared/6049966 Two Canberra men have been caught allegedly spearing a blue groper on the New South Wales far south coast. The NSW Department of Primary Industries says the 25-year-old and 43-year-old were fishing at Tura Headland near Merimbula when the younger man speared the blue groper late last year. He allegedly placed the fish on the line of his companion, who was fishing from nearby rocks. The department says the man did this to attempt to legitimise the capture because blue groper can only be taken by a fishing line. Fisheries officers were covertly watching the men and apprehended the pair as they prepared to leave. They were found to have a large blue groper with a spear wound in their possession. The men were each fined $500 and fisheries officers seized diving and fishing equipment. Blue groper are protected from spearfishing and anyone who spears one can face a maximum penalty of $22,000 and six months in prison. Posted 27 Jan 2015 27 Jan 2015 Tue 27 Jan 2015 at 7:00pm Share 3 February 2022 Officers apprehended the individual a short time later after thorough search of the vessel revealed a catch bag of filets stowed beneath the deck. NSW DPI says the blue groper is among the two per cent of all bony fish species that are hermaphrodites. This means it can change both colour and sex as it grows. From juvenile through to adult the female is a red to brown colour. The dramatic change to blue male occurs around 60cm and these can grow up to one metre in length. In the late 1960s, strict protection measures were introduced to preserve this species that has since become the iconic fish emblem for NSW. Line fishing is the only legal method for taking Eastern (blue, red or brown) groper in NSW. There is a bag and possession limit of two fish. There is a minimum size of 30cm and only one fish can be taken over 60cm.
